Tide by tide comes from, well, tides. The rising and falling of the sea. Consistent, timeless. Evolution is the only constant and everything goes back to the sea.

Founded in 2020 by Mimansa and Anando, two friends from high school, Tide x Tide is a collaborative design space born during the worldwide lockdown due to the Coronavirus. No, it wasn't boredom that did this. We have both had a helluva lotta industry experience working with some fantastic people and we thought that this would be the perfect time to get our own little shed going.

It also helps that we both revere the sea; Anando being a surfer and Mimansa a diver, a gentle fluidity that binds us. Our paths crossed naturally when we were in school and have now come together as a creative partnership.

We want to listen to you first. Discuss and gauge your needs from us. Then, together with you, explore and execute something you will love.

If you're a designer/developer/anything in between or outside and have a kick-ass proposal held tight in your fist and want to collab, holler!

We get it - something we've designed really fits the brief you're working with. It couldn't be more in place. We ask you to ask yourself whether you really need to rip it off and place it on your artboard. Instead, how about you take inspiration and draw on your own creativity (yes, you have it, just need to reach for it) or if you like, give us a call to discuss your project, maybe we can give you some ideas?
